Madison, Wis., May 8.—The Klan today won a victory in the election of its new national leader, and the Tammany and Smith organizations in New York City won a similar victory in the election of their new national leader. The Klan's victory was a surprise to many observers, who had expected the organization to lose to the more moderate National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). The Klan's new leader, Dr. J. Edgar Hoover, is a prominent figure in the organization and has been active in the fight against communism. The Tammany and Smith organizations' victory was also a surprise, as they had been expected to lose to the more moderate National Association of Manufacturers (NAM). The new leader of the NAM, Mr. C. D. Smith, is a prominent figure in the organization and has been active in the fight against communism.

Helena Attorney Bares Alleged Plot of G. O. P. Investigation

Got Wheeler Indicted District Attorney Forced to Prosecute By Department of Justice

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The activities of the Republican national committee investigator, who went to Montana to inquire into the record of Sen. Walsh, of the committee, and Sen. Wheeler, of the Democratic committee, were further described today in the Senate. A. A. Grout, a Helena attorney, said he had talked with Conn in Montana. "Conn came to me and said he wanted something to smear Sen. Walsh," Grout said. "He asked me for affidavits. He said they had Wheeler where they wanted him and now they would get something on Walsh."

"I told Conn I knew something about the Campbell case on which Senator Wheeler's indictment was based and that there was nothing they could do to smear Wheeler about it," Conn said. "I was right, but that they would have the indictment to hold over Wheeler anyway."

Senator Wheeler, the U. S. district attorney, had not wished to bring the case before a grand jury even though he had a charge against Senator Wheeler. He had been asked up in some of the proceedings and that made Senator Wheeler through, any way.

Bank Is Closed

First State At Sanborn, Ashland County, Taken Over By Banking Dept.

Deputy T. H. Baker, state banking commissioner, announced today that the First State Bank at Sanborn, Ashland county, has been taken over by the banking department and the doors of the bank closed. The bank is a small institution with a capital and surplus of $100,000. It was founded in 1912 and has been in operation since that time. The cause of the closure is the failure of the bank to meet its obligations to its depositors.

E. A. Bruns Fined $1 for Dairy Law Breach

E. A. Bruns was fined $1 and costs for violating the city health ordinance, by Judge O. A. Stolen Wednesday. The fine is alleged by Floyd Rath to be a health department to have sold milk coming from a herd of cattle that had not been tested by city officials and which were removed from a well that was polluted.

Federal Direction of State Education Hit By Tigert, U. S. Commissioner, In City

National System Would Disrupt Many Good Courses, He Says

Leaders in educational and congressional circles do not want the federal government to supervise or direct education throughout the states, according to Dr. John James Tigert, U. S. commissioner of education, who will address delegates to the ninth annual convention of the National University Extension association in the concert room of Lathrop hall Thursday night at 8. Dr. Tigert has just returned from Minneapolis where he had called a conference on "Home Education" in connection with the Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' associations in that city.

"It is not desirable that the federal government regulate education," said Dr. Tigert. "There are so many different systems and methods in vogue throughout the union that a national system would disrupt many good courses. Uniformity in education circles is not desired to the extent that we will maintain a stereotyped manner of instructing young people."

"Education is a technical subject, but so few people understand it as being just as technical as engineering or chemistry that it is sometimes difficult to make them see that what we want is a constant sifting of good ideas from educators that will formulate into a broad, loose form of instruction that will educate but not standardize."

"Madison and the University of Wisconsin have been very fortunate in having men who can see that teaching requires a technique that is not possessed by everyone."

"I am very much interested in the Dillinger bill now pending in congress which would make the bureau of education a research agency that would conduct investigations and disseminate information to the various state departments."

"The creation of a department similar to the bureau of standards that would do work for education which this bureau does for the industry of the nation would be of immense value to the states."

"This bill does not provide for the creation of a cabinet officer and does not appropriate $100,000,000 to the state, but it does provide $500,000 to co-ordinate work now being done in the lessening of illiteracy, physical education, teacher training, Americanization work, immigration work, vocational training and veterans' relief work," he said.

Other legislation now being considered by Congress regarding education which Mr. Tigert will explain tonight is the Sterling-Reed bill creating a cabinet position for the commissioner of education and appropriating $100,000,000 for educational purposes.

Hair Tonic Co. Is Indicted For Liquor Fraud

Sold $500,000 Worth of Alcohol In Middle West, Charge

NEW YORK, May 8.—A grand jury before Judge Goddard today handed up an indictment charging the Hair Tonic Co. with conspiracy to violate the prohibition act and defraud the government out of liquor taxes in transactions in the west and middle west. The charge is that the company sold $500,000 worth of alcohol in the middle west since October, 1921.

Federal Atty. Lennon said the Hair Tonic Manufacturing Corp. mentioned in the indictment had sold more than $500,000 worth of alcohol to bootleggers in Chicago, Minneapolis and other western and middle western cities since October, 1921.

as profoundly as the motion picture and automobile have in recent years. It is destined to hold the same place for the boy of tomorrow as the Arabian Nights for the boy of yesterday. These were statements made by Prof. W. H. Lighty of the University of Wisconsin.

He declared Thursday afternoon speaking before the ninth annual convention of the National University Extension association at the Wisconsin university extension building.

About 60 delegates had arrived Thursday afternoon.

Prof. Lighty declared that radio is certain to take a leading role in extension work of universities of the nation in years to come, but he declared that the time when radio courses will be effective will not come until a definite program for radio broadcasting is developed.

Senate and House Conference Bow to Will of President

Action Comes as Surprise Agreement Reached After Visit of G. O. P. Leader to White House

WASHINGTON, D. C. — An unexpected last minute change in the immigration bill which would postpone Japanese exclusion from July 1, 1924, until March 1, 1925, was agreed upon by senate and house conferees on Wednesday at the request of President Coolidge. The change was accomplished with swiftness after a short controversy among the conferees, which will be carried to the floors of house and senate just as soon as the report on the measure is brought up for consideration.

The conferees already had announced Wednesday night completion of the bill and had provided among other things for acceptance of the house provisions on exclusion, which would become effective next July.

Wednesday morning Senators Lodge and Reed of Pennsylvania and Rep. Albert Johnson of Washington, chairman of the house committee on immigration and naturalization, were called to the White House and after a conference with the president returned to the capitol where Sen. Reed sent a hurried call for the other conferees. He informed them the president was disappointed with the provision as it was left in the bill and desired a change to allow time for the difficulty to be ironed out through the channels of diplomacy.

Teapot Is Cooling No Spectators Present At Quiz Today: Bains Tells Of Oil Production

(By the Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON.—In a committee room, destitute of spectators, the practical details of oil production on Teapot Dome and Elk Hill were described today for the senate oil committee by H. Foster Bain, director of the bureau of mines.

Today for the first time the committee began its public session with no one present except members, witnesses and newspapermen.

Seven or eight oil wells have been drilled under the Doherty lease on the Elk Hill reserve, the director said, and have produced about 1,500,000 barrels. Most of them were offset wells. The actual average royalty paid by Doherty was 28 percent in December, he testified, and is now 26 percent. He said there had been no new drilling under the Doherty lease since the investigation began.

Pension Body Meets On Friday Afternoon

A meeting of the police and firemen's pension boards has been called for Friday afternoon. It was announced by E. F. Bunn, city auditor. The police pension board will meet at 4:30 and the firemen's board at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon.

A report on the financial status of both boards will be submitted by the city auditor. Both boards have reached the $20,000 limit as set by law. All funds over this amount is turned over to the city.

Delay Beaver Initiation Because of Bad Weather

Initiation ceremonies which were to have been conducted by the Madison Beaver lodge Wednesday night were postponed until June 5 because of bad weather.

Weather Report Furnished by U. S. Weather Bureau

The highest temperature yesterday was 47 at 11:30 a. m. and the lowest last night was 41 at 7 a. m. The rain fall was 10.58. Sun sets at 7:06. Light spread rainfall prevail in the eastern half of the country under the influence of the slowly moving low which is central over the Ohio valley and the Appalachians this morning. More than an inch fell at Washington, D. C. while the fall was moderate in Wisconsin and the upper lake regions and in Tennessee and light elsewhere. The barometer is rising on the plains and in the northwest. It is slightly colder in the middle valley states, warmer in the northern plains, little change elsewhere.

Baby Is Helpless! Death Awaits Child Because No One Found With Blood Like His

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Death waits at the bedside of Mimi Gagliana, 18 months old, in Long Island College Hospital, because no person with blood like his can be found.

Here, in the great melting pot of humanity where flows the blood of all races and tribes of the earth, hundreds have volunteered to give their blood for a transfusion. That seems to be the child's only hope of living.

There have been only four types of blood known to science until now, but Mimi's blood cannot be classified as any of them. The babe had pneumonia, then anemia. Physicians believe his illness set up a change in his blood. To transfuse blood of another type into his veins almost surely would be fatal to him.

And so Death, baffling science, waits.

Railroad Officials Here Work On Cities to Pass Resolutions

Congressman Beck Says Clubs Asked to Adopt Imported Statements

That railroad officials in the city of Madison are busy getting civic organizations in cities along the Madison division of the Northwestern road to adopt resolutions opposing any change in the Esch-Cummins law is the charge contained in a letter from Congressman Joseph D. Beck to The Capital Times today. Mr. Beck's letter follows:

"During February, I received from a friend of mine in Madison, a circular letter sent out by a Northwestern Railroad officer by the name of A. W. Bower, to all the depot agents along the Northwestern Railroad of the Madison Division, asking the agents to see to it that various Six O'Clock, Kiwanis, and other business men's clubs send resolutions to their congressmen opposing any amendment to the Esch-Cummins law."

"With this letter, was a mimeographed circular setting forth stereotyped reasons for such an appeal, together with a resolution to be adopted. Mr. Bower, of course, desired to save the business men's clubs the trouble of casting about for reasons and also the trouble of framing the resolution after the reasons had been found. So he furnished both."

"A few days later I received a resolution from the Kiwanis Club of Sparta, Wis. (preceded by several 'whereas' taken from the circular sent out by Mr. Bower) copied word for word from Mr. Bower's resolution, all of which covered any amendments to the Esch-Cummins law. I could have guessed that most of the members of the Kiwanis Club of Sparta were opposed to amending this law, though I doubt very much if any of them can give any valid reason for it. Otherwise, why rely upon Mr. Bower to furnish reasons behind the resolution I received?"

"I am fully aware that the members of the Kiwanis Club of Sparta are not the only people in Wisconsin opposed to amending the Esch-Cummins law."

Berlin Sees New Plot of Communists

300,000 Ruhr Coal Miners On Strike or Locked Out In Strife

8 Hour Question Cause Government Sees Link Between Unrest and 'Red' Agents

(By the Associated Press.)
BERLIN.—The situation in the Ruhr, where 300,000 miners are out because of their refusal to meet the demand of the owners for the addition of an hour to the working day is admittedly serious. Government circles are deeply concerned, and the departure of the Ruhr last night of Labor Minister Braun, in an attempt to settle the dispute emphasizes the gravity of the situation.

The entire German press is apprehensive that the conflict may react unfavorably against German foreign policy. Fear of disturbances is expressed.

Sees Communist Plot

BERLIN.—As a result of the big communist success at the polls on Sunday it looks as if the Ruhr district might be facing another "red war."

What makes the situation even more alarming to Berlin is a strong possibility of a connection between these strikes and the recent search of the premises of the Russian trade mission here, which, it is believed, gave the German police proof of a conspiracy between the Russian soviet government and the German communists to start a general strike throughout Germany.

Threaten to Seize Mines

DUESSELDORF.—The "Micum" organization with which the mine owners have an agreement for reparations deliveries, is insisting that these deliveries must be kept up, it threatens the seizure of more mines unless there is a speedy settlement of the labor trouble.

In Munster the gas supply of the city has been cut off, owing to a coal shortage due to the cessation of operations. Other of the Ruhr towns report the coal reserves to be rapidly vanishing.

Sing For Rotarians

Ten U. W. Girls Entertain; Whelan Recites Poems; Many Guests

Ten members of the University of Wisconsin Girls' Glee club, under the direction of Prof. Charles H. Mills, entertained with songs at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club in the Park Hotel Thursday noon. The program was a part of the Music Week.

Charles Whelan recited two poems entitled "Mother." One was written by an Iowa Rotarian and the other by himself.

Among the guests of the club on Thursday were Rotarians from Louisiana, Texas, Connecticut, New York, California, and two from Wisconsin cities.

The resignation of Martin Dunn, sergeant-at-arms, was accepted. Otis Harlow was appointed.

Evelyn Drops Fight to Keep Thaw In Hospital

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Evelyn Nesbit has abandoned her fight to keep Harry K. Thaw in the Kirkbride sanatorium, and has advised her counsel to drop the opposition to his release.

His counsel continue to buck my head against the Thaw millions when the trustees of the estate have withdrawn their objection -- the odds are too big, and I am awfully sick and tired of the whole business," Evelyn declared.

Michigan to Vote On Anti-Parochial Bill

LANSING, Mich.—The state supreme court today ordered that a proposed constitutional amendment to compel all children of school age to attend public schools be submitted to the voters at the November election.

The amendment is known as the anti-parochial school amendment. The court refused to consider the constitutionality of the proposed amendment before it has been adopted.

Vic Barnett Reads Jackie Daw to His Baby

IN a letter to NEA Service, commenting on the Jack Daw Adventures feature, Victor F. Barnett, former Madison Newspaperman and now managing editor of the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune, said in part:

"Jack Daw makes a newspaper subscriber of even a baby of 17 months."

"Some time ago I introduced Jack Daw to my own little boy. They have been fast friends ever since. The minute I enter the house each evening he sets up a lusty cry of 'Shakie! Shakie!' and thereupon we go over every detail of every picture."

"He points to each article in the picture and says 'bow wow,' 'funny man,' 'tree.' And then he dresses 'Shakie'—'shoes,' 'stockings,' 'coat and hat.' And then he picks out the eyes, nose and 'mouse.'"

"Jack Daw has made my little 17-months-old youngster call for his evening paper."

Jackie Daw's adventures appear every day in The Capital Times.

Horses Would Suffer With Trough Gone

William Busse, Humane Agent, Objects to Atwood Ave. Removal

Objection to the removal of the horse trough at Atwood and Madison was voiced Thursday by William Busse, humane agent.

Mr. Busse today maintained that such a move would work a hardship to hundreds of horses throughout the city.

"There are 150 horses that get water at this trough daily and during the hot summer months the number is larger," said Mr. Busse. "There is no waiting place in the city which is used more than the one at this location."

This trough is known to hundreds of farmers who come into the city at Atwood and Madison. We have already taken away a number of hitching posts and now it is proposed to take away the trough. Does this help farmer trade?"

Mr. Busse says that Dane county has a larger number of horses than any county in this vicinity. The number follows: Dane, 27,500; Grant, 21,500; Marathon, 18,400; Dodge, 17,200; Sauk, 14,700; Fond du Lac, 14,700.

Toothache?

It Will Not Ache a Second After "E-Z Tooth-Filler" Is Applied.

"Why, it's gone already!" That's what they all say the instant after a little of "E-Z Tooth-Filler" is put into the cavity. Of course it's gone, and no more thought than the tooth ought to be pulled out. It goes to go. For "E-Z Tooth-Filler" seals up the cavity, excludes the air, soothes the writhing nerve and leaves no cause for pain.

It's not merely a temporary relief, either, but a real filling for tooth which will last for weeks or months, until you get ready to have a permanent filling put in. Chew it same as on other teeth. Any one can use it. Takes but a moment to apply.

"E-Z Tooth-Filler" is for sale at your drugists at 5c a bottle or sent direct upon receipt of price by the Chas. A. Bergman Drug Co., 4411 Elston Ave., Chicago.

For sale and recommended in Madison by all dealers.—Adv.

Promise Road From Madison to La Crosse

All-Weather Highway to Be Completed in Year

Construction of an all-weather road between Madison and La Crosse which carries the heavy traffic between Minneapolis and Madison will be finished next year, according to W. O. Hotchkiss, chairman of the Wisconsin highway commission, at a meeting in La Crosse Tuesday night.

The difficulty in getting this highway has been one of financing, said Mr. Hotchkiss. "The poorer counties east of La Crosse would have a hard time paying for it alone, but the last legislature provided that money might be diverted from richer counties in order that trunk lines built with federal aid could be completed."

The cheapest plan for the highway, according to road men, would be to construct fourteen miles of hard surfaced road over stretches in the vicinity of Hustler on Highway No. 29. This would complete an all-weather road between the two cities, but on a longer route than Highway No. 33, which has 50 miles of hard surfaced road.

This road also takes the driver through territory that has much beautiful scenery in the western part of the state.

Members of the state highway commission and the legislative highway committee who were present at the meeting included: A. R. Hirst, state chief highway engineer; J. T. Donaghy, maintenance engineer; W. O. Hotchkiss, chairman of the highway commission; Sen. George Staudenmayer, of the legislative committee; Prof. P. E. Turneure, dean of the engineering college at the university; and Thomas Reynolds, division engineer of the state highway commission.

FORT ATKINSON — Mrs. Fred Hennel, 62, a lifelong resident of Jefferson county, died at the home here, where she had lived ever since her marriage in 1882.

ROADS BEGIN SUIT AGAINST CAB CURTAINS
The trial to test the constitutionality of the state law providing for the installation of cab curtains on railway locomotives operating in Wisconsin opened before Judge E. R. Stevens in circuit court Thursday morning.

The suit, begun by the Milwaukee road, the four joining in an action against the Northwestern railroad, has been taken up by the Milwaukee road.

Samuel E. Cady, attorney for the Northwestern road, declared that the order, providing that curtains must be approved by the commission was not authorized and that the law was unreasonable and unconstitutional.

He contended that the installation of the curtains over cabs and engine tenders would hamper operations.

L. P. Michaels, mechanical engineer and chief draftsman for the Northwestern road was a witness. The Milwaukee road was represented by John B. Sanborn and H. H. Field, the Soo line by W. A. Hayes and the Omaha line by Richard L. Kennedy.

Robert Rieser, assistant attorney general, represented the railroad commission.

Hi-Y Installs New Chapter Initiated; Officers Are Seated With Ceremony
Tuesday night at the city Y. M. C. A. was held the installation of the new chapter of the Central High School Hi-Y club.

Twelve boys were initiated. The following were chosen officers: John Miller, president; Jerome Harrison, vice-president; David Kack, secretary; Neal Simpson, treasurer.

Ray Sowers, head of the state Y. M. C. A. boys work, was in charge of the installation. Mr. Sowers gave an address of welcome in which he emphasized character building, life preparation, and concentrating on a particular work.

East Side high school Hi-Y club was in charge of the initiation. The following boys took part: Strauss, Louis Schmidt, Clayton Halverson, Edgar McFarther and Orian Dhein.

Those initiated were: Walter Miller, Jerome Harrison, David Kack, Neil Simpson, John Bogart, Raymond Fischer, Marshall North, Leo Pratt, Chester Best, John Miller, Philip Hicke, and Frederick Joachim.

Volney A. Barnes, of Central high school, installed the officers. They are: Bruce Green, president; Ralph Parkin, vice-president; James Hanks, secretary; and Joe Edwards, treasurer.

Dean Reber traces progress. Development of university extension work has surpassed that of any other branch of education work during the past ten years, Prof. L. E. Reber, dean of the University of Wisconsin Extension division, declared.

Dean Reber outlined the growth and progress of extension work, declaring this branch has now become a part of the work of the leading universities of the nation.

No other educational development of the time has surpassed or even approached in magnitude the growth and apparent permanence of extension work," the Wisconsin dean declared. "The extension movement has been paralleled by a change in other educational practice."

Dean Reber predicted further changes of highest importance in the educational system and thinking of the nation, looking toward better plans for vocational education.

Prof. Reber took issue with a few universities, including Columbia university of New York, which question the advisability of giving university credit courses by correspondence.

To impose a tax upon the radio interest seems like imposing a tax upon library circulation, he stated.

Dean Reber traces progress. Development of university extension work has surpassed that of any other branch of education work during the past ten years, Prof. L. E. Reber, dean of the University of Wisconsin Extension division, declared.

Dean Reber outlined the growth and progress of extension work, declaring this branch has now become a part of the work of the leading universities of the nation.

No other educational development of the time has surpassed or even approached in magnitude the growth and apparent permanence of extension work," the Wisconsin dean declared. "The extension movement has been paralleled by a change in other educational practice."

Dean Reber predicted further changes of highest importance in the educational system and thinking of the nation, looking toward better plans for vocational education.

Prof. Reber took issue with a few universities, including Columbia university of New York, which question the advisability of giving university credit courses by correspondence.

Extension Conference Here Is Urged to Include Workers' Education In Next Program

President of Association Is Chief Speaker Today at Convention

University extension teaching has come to the point where it is recognized as an established and reputable portion of the general university organization. Dr. Richard R. Price, president of the University of Minnesota and president of the National University Extension Association, declared at the opening of the ninth annual convention of that association here today.

The convention opened in the Wisconsin university extension division building. It will continue over Friday and Saturday.

Education extension division workers from throughout the nation, representing the leading universities and state colleges, are attending.

Among the notables is John J. Tigert, U. S. commissioner of education, who speaks at the meeting Thursday night in Luther concert room.

Dr. Price declared that it is no longer necessary to purchase religious education for the factory worker who works for a living and must devote their whole time to education.

In connection with the extension of educational facilities to a greater number of adults, President Price called upon the association to consider carefully and then adopt a consistent program and attitude toward this movement among the so-called workers or trade unionists for a participation in adult education of a constructive and organized type.

Dr. Price's address followed an address of welcome by Gov. Blaine. James E. Lough, dean of the extension division of the New York university, also spoke Thursday morning. His address was on "University Extension Travel Courses."

Murder Rate Still Climbing In U. S.; Lynchings Decrease

NEW YORK — The American murder record continues in an upward direction and at least 10,000 murder cases a year are being reported by the police, according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Another cities where the murder rate increased in 1923, he says, were Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus, Denver, Detroit, Erie, Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Los Angeles, Louisville, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Nashville, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Providence, Reading, Spokane, St. Louis, and Washington, D. C.

The one bright spot, Dr. Hoffman finds, is a steady decrease in the annual number of lynchings. He points to the fact that there were 255 lynchings in 1922 and but 33 in 1923 and notes that but 573 persons had been lynched in the past decade as compared with 736 in the previous decade.

Mrs. E. Porter, Track Compromise City Will Temper Demands On Regent St. Work To Car Company

A compromise offer on the proposed removal of the street railway company's tracks on Regent st. near Forest Hill cemetery will probably be offered by the city to the company when the matter comes before the common council, it was stated on Tuesday by Ald. A. G. Park.

The company asks permission to discontinue 150 feet of track leading to the cemetery. Objection has been voiced by citizens. The tracks will be removed temporarily to pave Highland ave.

A portion of the tracks on Regent st. will have to be raised after the paving of Highland ave. and the intersection with Regent is completed.

GREAT COMPOSERS Wagner a Music King

RICHARD WAGNER

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the great musical composers of six nations. The story of Giuseppe Verdi, great Italian composer, will appear tomorrow.

BY ERNEST BLOCH

Noted Composer and Winner of Coolidge Prize, 1919

The time in which we live is essentially an epoch of tremendous scientific and industrial progress.

Economic conditions rule the world. Art has become a luxury, a mere embellishment of life. Such conceptions, however, did not always prevail.

The arts played an essential part in the civilization of Egypt, Greece, the Middle Ages, and the Renaissance. The outlook on life of their great artists was different from ours. And in a more modern period, it is impossible to dissociate the music of Bach or Beethoven from the greatness of the men. Thus too, Richard Wagner is infinitely more a musician or even an artist.

When art is conceived in this way, it is no longer, as in our day, a luxury, a find, or a cult of personalities. It is rather a storm which shakes all men to the bottom of their souls, and wakes them to the greater problems of their common destiny.

Makes Fat People Slim

New York Physician Perfects Harmless Method of Reducing Weight

The loss of as much as a pound of excess fat a day with no harmful results is the record made by many patients of Dr. R. Newman, a licensed practicing physician of 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, who announces that he has perfected a treatment which has quickly rid fat people of excess weight.

What is more remarkable is the Doctor's statement that he has successfully treated thousands of patients for fat reduction without change of diet or unnecessary exercise. It is also said that fat people who suffer from chronic rheumatism, gout, asthma and high blood pressure obtain great relief from the reduction of their superfluous flesh. Reaction that this sounds almost too good to be true, the Doctor has offered to send without charge to anyone who will write him, a free trial treatment to prove his claims, as well as his "Pay-when-reduced" plan. If you want to rid yourself of superfluous fat, write him today, addressing Dr. R. Newman, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Dept. R.—Adv.

COULD NOT WALK BECAUSE OF PAIN

Bad Case of Woman's Illness Remedied by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Louis, Mo.—"I had such a bad case of female trouble that I could not walk because of the pains from inflammation. My back was all done up. I could hardly bend, could not go up stairs because of weakness, and no one could possibly be in worse shape than I was. I have taken 12 bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am a strong woman now and can work down any of my neighbors. They wonder how I can do so much work. I dare say that I have recommended your medicine to a thousand women. A little book was thrown at my door, and that is how I first learned of it."—Mrs. D. M. BEAUCHAMP, 1104 Morrison Avenue, St. Louis, Missouri.

Letters like this bring out the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Rep. Langley's Co-Defendants Plead Guilty

Tale of Conspiracy and Bribery Told at Rum Plot Trial

(By the Associated Press)
COVINGTON, Ky., May 8.—Walter B. Carey, Canton, Ohio, and M. E. Huth, Alliance, Ohio, two of the four co-defendants of Cong. John W. Langley, Ky., on trial in federal court here on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government through a whiskey transaction in 1921, reversed their pleas of not guilty and entered formal pleas of guilty when court convened today.

A tale of conspiracy, bribery and coercion involving the prohibition departments of two states and men prominent in politics in Kentucky, were told on Wednesday in federal court here in the trial of Langley.

Witnesses for the government related a number of "conferences" which took place in Lexington and Louisville. These meetings were arranged in advance, witnesses testified, and were for the purpose of discussing transportation of whiskey from the Belle of Anderson distillery of Lawrenceburg, Ky., to Philadelphia and other cities. Cong. Langley attended most of the meetings, testimony showed.

Music Contests Attracts 625 Students Here

High Schools Send Big Delegations to Madison Today

Some 625 high school musicians from all corners of the state arrived here last night to take part in the first all-Wisconsin high school music contest to be held under the auspices of the School of Music today and tomorrow. Private cars, trains and busses were employed to bring the visitors here. Many groups came more than 200 miles by auto to enter the contest. Groups from the local high schools will swell the total number of entrants to 750.

A free band concert complimentary to the contestants given by the university concert band, under the direction of E. W. Morphy, will conclude the day's activities, this evening. The concert will take place on the campus at 6:30 if the weather permits; otherwise in Music hall at 7:30.

Green Bay has 80 representatives, the largest delegation, which is composed of a band, an orchestra, a mixed chorus, a girls' glee club, and soloists. Other large delegations are from Madison Central and East Side schools combined which have 70 delegates, Wisconsin High 70, Elkhorn, 65, and Racine, 60.

Ward Transferred

Former R. O. T. C. Head Here Gets Denver Post; Lieut. Sutherland Sent To Alaska

Maj. Orlando Ward, former commander of the University of Wisconsin R. O. T. C., who last year was sent from Madison to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, for a course of instruction, will be transferred to duty as an executive officer in the 383 field artillery, organized reserves, at Denver, according to word received here from Washington on Thursday.

First Lieut. Edwin M. Sutherland, his former assistant here, has been ordered to Alaska for duty with the third division. He will report there after temporary duty with the infantry division of the ninth corps area.

Rail Officials Here Seeking Resolutions

Cummins law. There are thousands of others. But there are 300,000 more people in Wisconsin that are for amending it, than there are against it.

"A few days after I received this resolution I saw by the Sparta Democrat that the business men of Sparta had invited the farmers in for an evening's entertainment.

"I believe this is becoming somewhat of an annual affair and it is to be commended. It is a hopeful sign, for I remember, some years ago, it was quite difficult for the farmers in the vicinity of Sparta to get a meeting place to organize a branch of the Farmers' Equity Union.

"But I was a little disappointed, however, over this 'get-together' meeting, because, I felt that just as much as the railroads had kept themselves in the background and pushed the business men of Sparta out on the firing line in defense of the railroads, these business men would now say to the farmers in the vicinity of Sparta, 'Now boys, you are the fellows upon whom we chiefly depend for a living. We know that you only get about thirty-five cents out of every dollar you produce and we are going to get out on the firing line to see if we can bring about a condition whereby you can get at least two-thirds of what you produce. We ought to be able to get along on the other third.'"

"So we will telegraph our congressmen to support an oleomargarine bill that will put that fraud out of business. We will ask him to support legislation preventing the wide spread between what the farmer receives for his wares as compared with what he pays for groceries, clothing, machinery, etc.

"We will ask him to support legislation that will stop the enormous importation of Danish butter (which was four times as much for the month of February, 5,000,000 lbs. as for any one year before the war) which is driving down the price of your butter from 52 cents to 38 cents. You leave it to us. We'll take care of you."

"But I got no such appeals. Hence the disappointment. But yesterday I was handed five telegrams from the city of Sparta and I said to the business men of Sparta, 'The business men of Sparta are getting behind the farmers at last. Both they and the farmers are to be congratulated. When I opened the first telegram, however, it read:

"We are opposed to passage of important legislation such as the Howell-Barkley bill without full and fair hearing in the committee on telegraph public will condemn this as another Adamson law surrender. My high hopes began to diminish. Yet I had four more telegrams left. I opened another. It read exactly as the first. Hopes diminished some more. I had three left. I opened another. It was the same tenor except it said 'full and deliberate hearing.' Hopes still going down. I had just two left. I opened another. Same as others except it said 'full hearing.' The word 'deliberate' was almost gone. I tried the last one. Ditto, except it wanted a 'fair hearing; not so particular about a 'full' one as it was about a 'fair' one. Hopes petered out.

"Now, what about the Howell-Barkley bill? It is a bill to abolish the Labor Board section of the Esch-Cummins Act and put in its place the old Newlands law method of settling labor disputes on the railroads, whereby the railroads and their employees will be able to settle all their differences between themselves. The Labor Board is an expensive proposition and gives nothing in return for the money expended. The railroads pay no attention to its decisions except when it may suit their purposes, and it does not prevent strikes. The worst strike in railroad history occurred under this law. Not a single strike occurred under the Newlands act.

This Howell-Barkley bill in no way relates to the Adamson law. Mr. Bower would lead the people of Sparta to believe. This law related to hours of labor on railroads. The Howell-Barkley bill relates to arbitration and conciliation of disputes arising between railroads and their employees.

"Now as for 'full and fair hearings.' The railroads have been heard every day, since the moment the Esch-Cummins law went into effect. They have sent tons of literature on every phase of the subject to members of Congress. They have had certain so-called agricultural papers feeding this propaganda, not only to members of Congress but to farmers and everybody else all over the country. The daily and weekly press have been full of it. The railroads have never asked for a hearing before the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. They have said: 'If you have a hearing, we want to be heard.' The employees of the railroads have asked for hearings, but the reply of the Committee has been 'We haven't time.' The facts are that the Committee has not held a hearing on a single important bill in the five months Congress has been in session. The feeling among members of Congress is that it never intended to hold a hearing on this bill.

"The truth is, however, both the railroads and their employees have had a hearing on it. The Senate Committee held hearings on it until everybody had their say. The hearings were full and fair and complete. No one who wanted to be heard was denied the opportunity. Those hearings were attended by many members of the House, and they are available to every member. The further truth is that the railroads as a whole are not opposed to this bill in itself. What they fear is that if this amendment to the Esch-Cummins Act should pass it will be an entering wedge to amending the freight rates section."

HIS BROTHER'S WIFE

by RUDY AYRES
ONIA SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The marriage of Dolly and Nigel Breckerton proves an unhappy one. When he is declared dead, Nigel is glad to be released. He leaves Dolly in the care of Mary Fisher. Nigel is killed and Dolly marries an old sweetheart, Robert.

Dolly and Robert sail for America and word comes of the sinking of their ship. When Nigel's brother, David, calls to see Nigel's widow, Mary, he is told that Nigel is dead. Mary is surprised to learn that Dolly's marriage was a success.

David mistakes Mary for his brother's wife and asks her to come to live at Red Grange with him and his aunt. Mary is given a hearty welcome to her new home. When David Fisher comes to call at Red Grange, Mary asks David not to accompany Dora to the station.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
She crept past him now, and went into the hall, where Miss Varney and David Fisher stood together. Mary thought that the latter looked at her rather curiously as she joined them; she was conscious of her hot cheeks and nervous manner. She went on to the front door, and stood looking out into the darkening garden.

The headlights of the big car pierced the gloom like vicious eyes, throwing everything beyond into acute shadow. Breckerton passed her and climbed into the front seat; he did not look at her.

After a moment or two Dora followed him; she was laughing and talking all the time; she shook hands with Mary effusively.

"I am so pleased to have met you," she said. "I hope we shall be great friends. You must come and stay with us in town, will you?"

Mary's troubled eyes turned towards David, but he was sitting at the wheel, staring straight in front of him. She began a stammering reply.

"Thank you—thank you very much. But I shall not be here much longer; I am only on a visit, you know. Thank you very much, all the same."

A little flash of interest crept into Dora's face, but it was gone instantly.

"Is that so? I didn't know; but perhaps you will be able to spare us a weekend sometime. Goodbye."

She got into the car beside David. He drew the rug round her punctiliously; Mary watched them with an absurd little heartache.

She remembered that being there in her place; she stood in the cool darkness for some moments after the car had turned out of the drive.

Miss Varney called to her from the hall.

"Come in, my dear—come in! You will catch your death of cold!"

Mary obeyed reluctantly; she was surprised to find that she was quite chilled. She walked back to the drawing-room and knelt down by the fire; Miss Varney followed.

"I'm glad she didn't stay," she said, with a little comfortable laugh. "I do try to like her, for David's sake, but in my heart I don't really like her at all."

Mary did not look round; she was holding her hands to the blaze.

"Why, why for David's sake?" she asked, rather constrainedly. Her brother is his greatest friend, and for another—well, they have known each other all their lives."

"I don't know. Do you think he will marry her?"

Miss Varney said "Good heavens!" in a voice of horror.

"She stared down at Mary's black-robed figure with eyes that were almost frightened."

"My dear child! What put such an idea into your head?"

Mary laughed.

"Oh, I don't know. Why should it be anything so very strange, after all? You say they are old friends, and she is very pretty."

"Humph! Well, everyone to their tastes," said Miss Varney. "But, personally, I prefer a woman to be less like an expensive dress-up doll. And if David ever marries, I hope he'll be sensible and choose a wife like you, my dear. If I may say so."

"Oh!" The little exclamation escaped Mary involuntarily. She colored sensibly.

"Well, I mean what I say," Miss Varney declared. "Women of your type are those who make men happy; the women who make a real 'home' in its best sense—not a doll, without a thought in her head, beyond new frocks and jewelry. But apart from that, I'm quite sure that David has never given her a serious thought."

Mary did not answer; her thoughts were away along the dark road with the two in that speeding car.

She despised herself because she felt angry and jealous, and yet she could not crush the feeling. When Miss Varney had left, she rose to her feet and went over to the window, drawing aside a blind.

It was not nearly time for David to come back yet, but all the same she found herself straining her ears for a sound of the returning car, or a gleam of its powerful headlights through the darkness.

CHAPTER XXXIII
Not Encouraging.

But David and his companion had not yet reached the station; the engine was running badly, and once or twice it stalled on a hill leading down to the village.

Dora was, of course, rather pleased; she calculated that if they were to lose this train, she would have to spend the night at the Red Grange; there was another train to town, but it would mean her rushing home so late, she knew David would never consent to her going by it alone.

But the engine improved after the first half mile. David turned to her with an apologetic smile.

"I'm sorry to have been so unenterprising; there was nothing wrong with the engine. I hope we shall get to the station safely."

Dora laughed.

"I hope so too, it wouldn't be very nice to be left on the roadside so late as this."

David leaned forward and consulted the little clock opposite.

"It's not very late," he said, in a matter-of-fact voice. "And we could always walk back."

She frowned a little impatiently; he was always so dull, she told herself with a sense of irritation. Why was it that she could never make him talk to her as other men did? Apparently her beauty and expensive clothes were nothing to him.

But in spite of her irritation, his indifference piqued her; she made every effort to interest him.

She began to speak about Mary.

"Such a dear!" she gushed. "I had no idea she was so nice. Monty never thought much of her, you know."

"No?"

He said he considered she was rather common, but I should hardly call her that, would you?"

"I was not encouraging, but she went on."

"It was so surprised when she told me that she is only with you on a visit. I quite thought that she was going to live here."

"I hope she will." The answer was quiet and unexcited.

Dora hit her lip angrily, but her voice was sugary enough when she next spoke.

"Do you?" How awfully sweet of you! I think she is so fortunate to have such kind relations-in-law; as a rule they are rather horrid, don't you think?"

"We've never been married—so I can't judge," said David. He sent the car forward a trifle more quickly; through the night had sounded the distant whistle of the incoming train.

"I think we shall just catch it," he said smoothly.

The train was at the platform when they left the car outside the station; there were only a few seconds in which to say goodbye.

Dora swallowed her chagrin as best she could; her pretty face was wreathed in smiles as she leaned from the carriage window.

"It has been so nice to see you."

"Thank you. But I shall not be here much longer."

again; you won't forget us next time you come to London, David?"

"I certainly will not. Tell Monty, I will look him up."

She nodded.

"That means the office."

"Not at all; I will make a special point of calling to see you."

But the words were impartial, in spite of the eagerness with which the last glimpse she had of him was his grave face, from which all consciousness of her was already fading.

CHAPTER XXXIV
A Change of Color

She sat back in her corner of the empty carriage frowningly. After all, she almost regretted having paid the visit at all; Red Grange had seemed even more alluring than she had previously remembered it, and David less susceptible to her charms.

Why was he so different from all the other men of her acquaintance, she asked herself angrily. She could enumerate half a dozen in as many seconds who would have given anything for the chance of a possibly lengthened tea-table with her; but David had utterly driven the car faster to get rid of her.

But David's very indifference lent a spur to her hitherto only half-formed resolve. She would marry him; she would marry him in spite of everything, and be mistress of the Red Grange.

And as for the pale-faced widow of Nigel—Dora's face hardened as she recalled the friendly way in which she and David had entered the drawing-room that afternoon, fresh from their drive.

Monty had been right when he said that from what he knew of the girl she would lose no opportunity to outdo herself at the Red Grange; and she had certainly done a lot during the short time of her stay there.

"Scheming little rascals!" was the thought in Dora's mind.

She tried to remember what else Monty had said about her, beside the fact that she was common; she knitted her brows, puzzling her brain to remember.

There was something else, she was sure; something which, he had called her "pretty" in a sort of a way, and commented on the fact that she had red-brown hair.

That was so like a man, to make such a mistake! Red-brown hair, indeed! Why, it was the most ordinary mouse-colored shade!

And her clothes! Dora indulged in a little smile as she remembered Mary's simple black frock, her homely, but had designated it from the first. What ever on earth could Nigel have seen in her! Nigel, who always so admired a smart woman.

'Happy' Felsch Produces Affidavits; Will Play Against the Blues

By De Beck

Former White Sox Star O. K. As Far As Managers of Locals Are Concerned

Unless Something Unforeseen Develops, He'll See Action Saturday

BY BRYN GRIFFITHS.
"Happy" Felsch, former Chicago White Sox star, who has been signed to play with the Twin Cities Red Sox, and over whom there has been much argument during the past three days among Madison fans is O. K. and will be permitted to play against the Blues here this weekend as far as managers Lenahan and Dodge are concerned.

Wednesday afternoon, Paul Nighor, manager of the Twins in Madison with Walter Montgomery, secretary of the Blues, and they produced affidavits showing that Felsch has a clean slate.

Both managers, Lenahan and Dodge expressed hope before Nighor arrived Wednesday that Felsch could prove he is O. K.—but they feared that even though he might prove he has a clean slate, that some of the members of the Blues might not wish to endanger their records by getting into action against him.

Unless something unforeseen happens—and it wouldn't be a big surprise if something does, Felsch will see action here twice this week. Sentiment among local fans is about evenly divided concerning Felsch's playing here and the officers of the Madison Athletic Association are wondering what the reaction will be at the games.

However, in the meantime, "Happy" continues to hit the apple of the eye of the park in practice at the Twin Cities and is ready to help them win their games.

DOWN THE FAIRWAYS WITH BRYN GRIFFITHS

According to another Wisconsin sporting writer in a nearby town, the man who is bitten by the golf bug can "travel" in three styles—Ford, Buick, or Cadillac. According to local sporting goods dealers, the average golfer prefers to travel in a "Buick style." To travel in "Ford style" means that the golfer bugs and clubs of the most ordinary type, the whole set not costing more than $10. To outfit a golfer in class, balls, equipment and clothes for the "Buick style" it is estimated that it costs about $68 and in "Cadillac style" well, just as high as you might wish to go over the $68.

As announced in The Capital Times during the state basketball tournament, there will be a state high school golf tournament at Racine this month. The W. L. A. A. sanctioned the tourney at their meeting here during the state cage meet. Madison's high schools will have entries in the golf meet.

Did You Know That
Forty-two clubs, eight located in Milwaukee and 34 throughout the state are now in the Wisconsin Golf Association. The Lake Ripley club at Cambridge is one of the newest members. Applications have been received from several other state clubs and action will be taken on them in June at Kenosha where the state meeting is to be held.

A Little Advice
There was a man in our town who happened to advance his left foot very far in front. When taking up his stance, and when he found he got a hook, which wasn't very nice. He put his right foot out in front. And then he got a slice. —Judge.

Abraham Lincoln, when asked what three things he considered necessary for success as a lawyer, answered, "Work, work, and more work." After talking to Guy Martin A. E. Mayo, and J. C. Harkbath professionals of the local courses we come to the conclusion that to be a successful golfer the three important things are, "Practice, practice, and more practice." (We heard George P. Hambrecht tell this story about Abe Lincoln at a meeting of the Lions' club recently. Thanks George.)

Questions, and Answers
This column is straggling with the local professionals to answer any questions about golf that players want answered. Send in your queries to Bryn Griffiths, conductor of this column and he will have it answered for you the next day.

Iowa-Chicago Teams to Play On Saturday

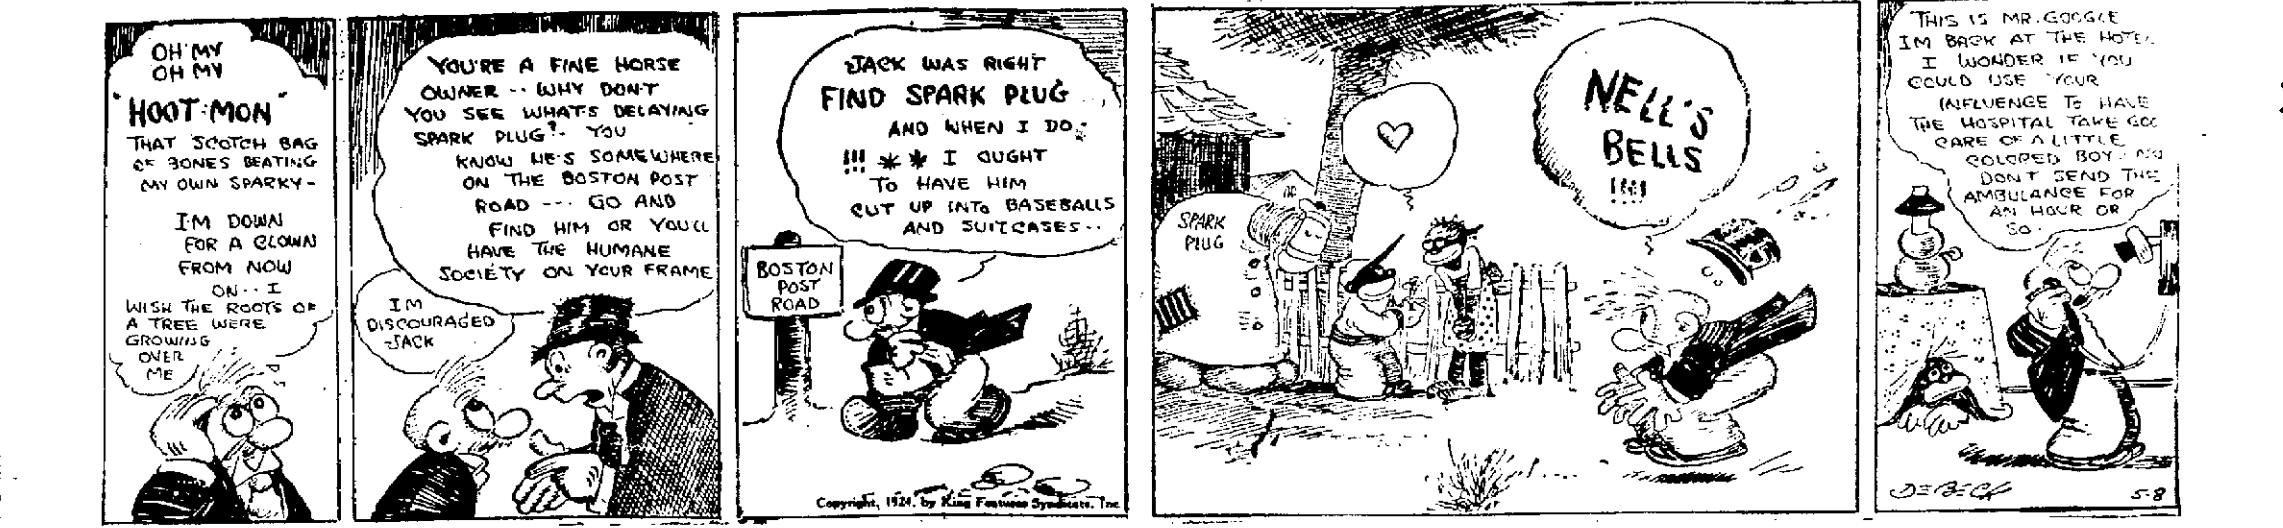

Hawkeyes to Battle Fast Illini Aggregation Monday

IOWA CITY, Ia. — Taking the first trip of the season, the ambitious University of Iowa baseball team will meet Chicago at Chicago on Saturday and Illinois at Urbana on the following Monday. The Hawkeyes occupy fifth place in the Western conference standing. In their two games they will play the tail-end Maroon nine, already having defeated them once and the leading Illini team, which holds a 5 to 1 victory over the Hawkeyes. When Coach Sam Barry's men won their third Big Ten victory Saturday by defeating Northwestern 8 to 1 they exhibited only mediocre baseball. Errors by Northwestern at critical times gave the Hawkeyes unearned runs. The Iowans accumulating only eight hits off the pitchers of two Purple pitchers. Dunn hurled fairly good ball for Iowa, allowing seven hits most of which were scattered. Poepsel, with three hits was the batting star of the winning nine.

Mackmen Lose Ninth Straight; Yanks Win 7-4

Boston Red Sox are Defeated By Senators 5-4

(By the Associated Press)
The Philadelphia Athletics are hoisting signals of distress in the American League. For the ninth consecutive time the Mackmen have been beaten to the wire until today they stand firmly embedded in the mire of defeat at the bottom of the Johnson heap.

Pre-curtain favorites to upset the championship aspirations of Miller Huggins, the Athletics with expensive talent aboard, seemed destined to repeat their 1923 failure to land in the select circle of first division clubs.

Yanks Win 7 to 4
Brute batting strength by the Yankees yesterday sounded taps on the Mackmen 7 to 4, for the third straight game of the series and the ninth straight defeat of the season.

Red Sox Lost 5 to 4
The Boston Red Sox, one of the pre-season mystery teams, had their winning streak brought to an abrupt termination by the Washington team 5 to 4, but it took the Senators 11 innings to bring about this result.

Giants Lead Nationals
The Giants continue to lead the parade in the National league gaining a half game on the Reds by defeating the Phillies in ten innings 4 to 2, while the Reds were forced into idleness by wet ground at St. Louis. The Cubs gained a notch on the Dodgers in the private fight for third place when they turned back the Pirates 5 to 1, while the Dodgers were losing to the Braves 4 to 1.

Speaker Uses 20 Players
This Speaker used 20 players, including a quintet of pitching shifts and a quartet of pinch hitters against four St. Louis boxmen but the Browns, by bunching hits in two innings, breasted the tune first.

'Happy' Felsch Given O. K. Affidavits Brought Here By Paul Nighor Of the Twin Cities' Team Assure Games Here With the Blues Saturday and Sunday die Lenahan, manager of the Madison Blues; Paul Nighor, manager of the Twin Cities Red Sox, and Bryn Griffiths, sporting editor of The Capital Times.

Paul Nighor, manager of the Twin Cities Red Sox, and Walter Montgomery, the club's secretary, were in Madison Wednesday with affidavits showing that 'Happy' Felsch, former White Sox player who was involved in the 1919 world's series scandal is O. K. and that none of the Madison Blues players need be afraid of blushing their records by playing against him.

The above picture was snapped in front of John Abaly's Billiard parlors, and shows Nighor showing one of the affidavits to Lenahan, manager of the Blues. Bryn Griffiths, of The Capital Times sporting staff and Walter Montgomery, secretary of the Twin Cities club, are also present.

Felsch will be seen in action here Saturday and Sunday against the Blues and according to Manager Nighor he is in great shape.

Hank Casserly's Column

The University of Wisconsin baseball team would win fame and fortune were they to schedule a ball game in the Sahara desert. When the team is out on the sand the skies would open and a deluge would result.

The Budgers have had more than their share of rainy weather. Of the four home games scheduled so far, one with Northwestern was cancelled and two of the others played on diamonds that resembled old bog hollow.

We wish to suggest at this time the idea of a practice game with the Madison Blues. Both the university and city teams need the practice and the Blues could furnish opposition at least as strong as any conference team.

Managers Lenahan and Dodge would welcome the idea and Coach Lowman would not be adverse to the plan. There could be no objection from the ethics of such a game as Chicago, Ohio State, Iowa and Indiana have been and still are playing professional and semi-professional teams during the spring practice season.

There are baseball fans, golf bugs, tennis fiends and football fanatics, but the bug which once it enters a human's blood stream, can never be destroyed is that of horse racing. Whether it be the "band tail" or the harness horse, the virus never loses its strength.

A noted example of this is Mrs. Susan W. Sherley who has passed her 92 milestone. Nevertheless she will witness the running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs May 17. This will be the 50th derby she has witnessed and despite her age and the infirmities that accor-

Badger Nine Trims Beloit Team 5 to 0

Game Is Played In Drizzle; Pitchers Look Good

Wisconsin's rampaging ball team hit, slid, floundered, and swam its way through the greasy muck of Camp Randall yesterday afternoon for a five inning 5 to 0 victory over Beloit college's nine, while the hundred hardy fans braved the drizzle and watched Co. team man condition his outfit for the coming Big Ten encounter.

The field conditions, coupled with weather which was ideal for shooting, but which was conducive to good baseball, saw the encounter for the most part a comic sketch of near thrilling, but not fatal blunders.

Badgers Score in Third
The ball, gammed with the sticky red clay with which the field had been filled, sailed all over the diamond, and slid off the bat for a number of freak hits.

Wisconsin's scores came in the third and fourth rounds. Up to that time neither team had done more than sketchily threaten a score, but in the third the Badger rolled triples by Christianson and Dugan, and a walk by Ellings into two counters.

grand old lady as her interest in the highest type of sportman.

The French people may have been a wonderful aid in winning the last war, but their idea of sportmanship seems to be sadly lacking. The first inkling of this was in the jumping contests in which one of the U. S. jumpers was badly injured due to the foolish rule that no practices would be allowed.

Then the hockey team was hampered by the lack of sideboards on the court. The Yankee hockey team is now resenting the remarks of Armand Massard, sporting editor of La Liberte, who has rift a several articles questioning the amateur standing of the members of Uncle Sam's Rugby team.

The latest development along these lines of French interference is the questioning of the style used by Harold Osborne, I. A. C. star, holder of the world's record in indoor high jump.

The American record holder is himself that Osborne's style is perfectly legal and the Swedish representative who is president of the council shares their views. When England and Hungary will do this question remains to be decided. All the more credit to the

QUESTIONS
1. If a batsman, after missing the third strike, starts for his bench and paces about 15 feet in that direction, then discovers the catcher has missed the ball, what are the batsman's rights? In this case the batsman retouches home plate and runs to first base, which he reaches before the catcher can throw the ball to the first baseman. Would he be out or safe?—K.D.B.
2. Is it possible for a pitcher to make a balk when there are no men on bases?—N.S.
ANSWERS
1. Such a play often comes up in a major league game. It is not necessary that the runner return and touch the plate when he sees the ball has been missed from the catcher. He can start from wherever he is, when he discovers the catcher has erred on the ball. Major league umpires do not regard that he has run out of line in first starting for the bench, but simply his made the distance to first that much longer. In the case cited the runner was safe.
2. It is impossible to make a balk without any runners on the bases. An illegal delivery can be made, which would be called a balk even though it passed over the plate at the proper height. If the batter elected to hit such a delivered ball whatever happened would be regarded as legal.

Badger R. R. Income Taxes Show Increase

Wisconsin Fixes Total Valuation at $365,630,000

Railroad income taxes in Wisconsin this year will show a slight increase over last year, due to better business conditions and final assessments of the Interstate Commerce Commission, according to state tax commission officials.

The commission late Wednesday fixed the final tax assessment against operating lines for 1924.

The valuation of Wisconsin railroads under the assessment fixed, is placed at $365,630,000. The rate of taxation is $20.65 per $1,000, a slight decrease over the 1923 rate.

Valuations assessments on the big roads follow:

Chicago and Northwestern, $127,000,000; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, $24,000,000; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, $57,000,000; Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha, $35,500,000; Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee, $5,500,000; Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic, $1,500,000; Great Northern, $12,000,000; Green Bay and Western, $1,500,000; Hillsboro and Northeastern, $1,500,000; Central, $2,000,000; Interstate Transfer, $1,250,000; Keweenaw, Green Bay and Western, $1,250,000; Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie, $37,000,000; Northern Pacific, $42,500,000.

Deaths In The City Increased By 10

Deaths in Madison during April numbered ten over the total for the same period of a year ago although the general health of the city was fair, according to the monthly report of the city board of health.

The number of deaths the past month totaled 50 as compared with 40 during April, 1923. The number of deaths reported for the first four months this year, however, is less than for the same period in 1923. So far 181 deaths occurred during 1924 as compared with 205 for the first four months last year.

Of the communicable diseases reported to the board during the month, chicken pox lead with 92 cases reported. Whooping cough was the next highest with 49 listed.

Other items in the report were: diphtheria, three; scarlet fever, fourteen; pneumonia, 22; typhoid fever, two; mumps, ten; measles, two.

A regular pre-council meeting of the judiciary committee, has been called for Thursday night at 7:30 to consider a number of small claims against the city.

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With Ochine—Double Strength

This preparation for the removal of freckles is so successful in removing freckles and giving a clear, beautiful complexion that it is sold under guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Don't hide your freckles under a veil, get an ounce of Ochine and remove them. Even the first few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the lightest freckles vanishing entirely. Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Ochine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee.—Adv.

REPORT OF THE MARKETS

Issues Firm

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO—All grain showed a downward tendency in price today during the early dealings. Commission houses were generally on the selling side. In the wheat market trade was broader than of late, with the chief bearish factors the outlook regarding farm legislation at Washington and the reported virtual collapse of the Argentine strike. Wheat opening prices which ranged from 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 c. lower, May 1.03 1/2 to 1.04 and July 1.05 1/2 to 1.06 were followed by a slight further decline.

Final quotations were unsettled 1/4 to 1/2 c. net lower, May 1.03 1/2 and July 1.05 1/2 to 1.06 1/2.

CORN—Corn dropped to nearly 75c for May delivery, the lowest price in some time. Buying support became less in evidence as the fall of values continued with standing orders being automatically forced into action to stop losses at certain levels, after opening 1/4 to 1/2 c. off, May 75 1/2 to 76 and July 77 1/2 to 78, the market rallied a little but then moved to a neutral set-back.

The closing was irregular. Sales approximated 500,000 shares.

OATS—Oats started at a shade to 1/4 c. lower, July 43 1/2 and later made a further descent.

PROVISIONS—Provisions were steadied by an upturn in hog values.

Why This Parallel?

LAST Saturday, Orrin Pixley, 40, held up the bank at North Freedom.
The alarm was quickly given. Officers of the law and bank detectives started hotly on the scent. Pixley was apprehended Saturday afternoon. He was brought to Baraboo and taken before a justice of the peace. He pleaded guilty. Yesterday he was brought before circuit court here and was sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary.
All this was done between Saturday morning and Wednesday noon.
Pixley had committed a crime against PROPERTY. He must be sternly dealt with. He was.

LAST Saturday night, somebody who is probably getting rich selling moonshine, sold a quantity of poison to some university students. Next day, following the moonshine party, an 18 year old boy is found dead.
Do the law enforcing officials quickly get up to the scent to bring in the man who sold the moonshine? Is there any SERIOUS effort made to punish the man who was guilty of ending a HUMAN LIFE?

THE sacredness of PROPERTY must be preserved at all costs. HUMAN WELFARE can drift.
Pixley is already in prison started on his long fifteen year stretch. The moonshiner sits back confident that he is safe as long as law enforcement is palsied in Dane county.

A Menace To Birds

SOMETHING should be done to stop the depredations of roving cats on bird life in this state.
Why do we license dogs and not cats? Why should the dwindling number of songbirds that come to us each summer be further depleted by the marauding feline tribe?
We would like to hear from our readers on some constructive program that can be adopted to protect bird life against this menace.

Carrying Universities To The People

THE men who carry the universities of the country to the doorsteps of the people are in Madison today.
The University of Wisconsin and Madison are today hosts to Extension directors of thirty-six of the leading universities who are here to attend the ninth annual meeting of the National University Extension Association.

WISCONSIN people are interested in extension development because it is a part of their idea of a great university. Wisconsin was fortunate in having such men as the late President Van Hise, Frank A. Hutchins, and Charles McCarthy whose vision made it possible for the University of Wisconsin to become one of the pioneers in this work and Dean Louis E. Reber who has not only contributed to the vision but has also been the force back of this development of making the university available to the people.

Other states have had their educational leaders who saw the tremendous possibilities in taking the University to the people. Today, some kind of extension work is being conducted in every state in the Union. While the plan of development has differed to some degree in the various states, the work as a whole might be divided into what can be termed formal and informal teaching. Formal teaching includes correspondence study work and extension classes held throughout the state. Informal teaching includes instruction by means of lectures, institutes, conferences, the distribution of information through package libraries, bulletins, educational slides, films, and exhibits and similar community development and general welfare work.

THE conference here this week gives an opportunity for crystallizing the best ideas of the entire group of extension divisions. We are glad to have extension workers from other universities with us because their ideas will help Wisconsin to devise better ways of making the resources of the University available to all the people.

Beck Sends Reply

Answers Neillville Press On Statement That People Tire of Investigations

The following is a copy of a letter which Congressman Beck has sent to the Neillville Press:
In your paper of April 3d, in "Congress has Stopped Work," in which you comment on the work of the Senate for performing a "great public duty in bringing to light an intolerable condition of affairs," you then intimate that the people are getting tired of this investigation and are demanding legislation instead; they are demanding tax reduction. You suggest that Congress has been in session four months and has so far failed in tax reduction.

Let us assume that congress has not done a single thing to expose corruption in the administration of the governmental affairs, and suppose it continues to do nothing else throughout this entire session, would it not be rendering a greater service to the people by continuing the expose of graft than any legislation it could possibly enact? What is the use of enacting legislation in the interests of the people when those who administer the law, administer it against the people? Is it not better to get such administrators out of office and replace them with those who will enforce the law than to continue legislating with little attempt to enforce law in the interest of the people?

It has been repeatedly charged on the floor of the house, and no one has denied it, not even Mr. Mellon, that big business interests are escaping their share of the taxes to the amount of one and a quarter billion dollars a year. If these interests were compelled to pay their lawful taxes it would at once mean a reduction of 50% in federal taxes to every federal taxpayer in the 7th Congressional district. Mr. Mellon wants this withholding of taxes legalized by Congress. Is it not better for Congress to root out crime, expose it, instead of becoming a party to it by legalizing it?

Take the laws against profiteering as another example. Everybody complains of profiteering. Yet we have laws to prohibit it if enforced. Does anyone contend that, with the administration of justice in the hands of a Daugherty, these laws will ever be enforced? Is it not better to expose and root out the crookedness in the Department of Justice than to attempt to enact more laws against profiteering?

Take the Packers and Stockyards Act, calculated to protect the livestock producers against unscrupulous practices of the packers and commission men. Instead of this law being enforced in the interests of the farmer, it is absolutely being used to protect the commission men to the extent of robbing the farmers of at least $16,000,000 a year on overcharges at the livestock terminals. What is the use of enacting more legislation to protect the farmers and other producers, if such legislation is to be enforced against them?

But let us see about Congress being in session four months, as you say, and has not enacted any tax legislation. On April 11, 1921, Congress convened in special session to enact, among other things, a tax law. But it was not until the 23d of the following November, (7½ months) that a tax law was enacted.

I believe when the people understand what this congress is doing, there will be no complaint from them so far as Congress is concerned. Of course it is to be expected that big business interests who are corrupting our governmental machinery will complain. But it is not to be expected that you will condone them. These big business crooks will stop at nothing in order to retain their hold on the government. They never have, and never can, put up a more desperate fight than they are now waging.

[To the Editor]—Your moonshine editorial should have the hearty endorsement of every decent citizen. But: Why don't you name the fraternity involved? Is it fair to condemn all the fraternities on Langdon Street, just because one of them has disgraced itself?—C. S. Arnold.
Editor's Note—The Capital Times has named the fraternity several times. It is the Zeta Beta Tau fraternity.

THANK YOU!

VICTORS

Organized labor last year won more disputes than employers, for the first time since 1913, the Rand School reports.
Over a period of two and a half years 692 disputes were won by labor, 1095 by employers and 505 were compromised.
It is not so many years since employers won all disputes except in the rare occasions when they made concessions out of "goodness of their hearts." The tide is turning since labor copied capital by organizing.
We wonder how many disputes were lost by that great third party, the unorganized public.

Ticks o' the Times

It doesn't take any columnist to realize that recurrences of the Rosenthal tragedy can only be prevented through co-operation of the university men themselves. In fact present conditions are probably due to the fact that a high-handed, mid-Victorian disciplinarian attitude has been usually taken by the administrative officers on the Hill, in coping with such situations before.

But co-operation will not come where there is no confidence. Therefore the effectiveness of the Dean of Men will be nil in any such constructive program. Regardless of our personal feelings, we know that Dean Goodnight is as far from the hearts of Wisconsin men as President Harding was from the hearts of the wheat farmers.

We suggest that Prexy Birge call all the men together and talk to them like a Dutch Uncle. He could make drunkenness bad form at Wisconsin quicker than any other one influence, by taking the men into his confidence and appealing to them as gentlemen of supposedly good breeding, and capable of a little rational thought.

LOCAL NOTES

The Cracker Box Forum of Windsor has decided that the new state road north to Portage should be built up through Catfish Marsh.

The baseball fraternity of the near-East side have just learned what's wrong with the ball season so far. Murilla Peterson, the East Side's famous baseball exponent and feminine fan is not out limbering up this spring. "Pete" is here in town, but she isn't pitching. What's the matter?

Bowling alleys shut down yet it's just about snowing.
The poor Average Guy gets it coming and going.

THE PARTING

We called the doctor late last night
For Mother, dear—it seemed a fright,
That she should have to suffer so,
When she was told that it must go

This morning father got our meal,
And says, "I know how you must feel,
But poor old doctor did his best,
Yet found it had to leave the rest."

Of course our Ma should not feel sad,
She's got nine left and that's not bad—
The one she lost was short and small,
And she'll not miss the thing at all.

"Won't miss a babe that sweetly smiled?"
Don't be misled, my foolish child;
It was a finger very sore,
She mashed it in the kitchen door.

Amos Nye Yeoman.

That ex-soldier who wrote in to tell us that Uncle Sam had sent him a bill for $25 over pay received during the war, ought to scrape together a gas mask, helmet, wrap puttees, condiment can, and other junk, send it to Washington and tell them to call it square.

Will everyone please take note of our new spring hat up on top of the Col.

If we had 20,000 dollars to spend for a name, we sure could do better than some people have done.

JOKING WITH METHUSELAH

In my day we never heard of anyone doing what a great many are trying to do today marrying a girl for the sake of beating her chaperon out of a job.

Bark deposits in this country exceed $40,000,000; so there must be still some people who never heard of oil stocks and bucket shops.

"Headquarters moved slowly during the month," reports the Market Monthly Review. "Forequarters became more active." No wonder the packers are having so much trouble trying to make both ends meet.

It seems the fashion today for everyone to be getting something off his chest. I, too, shall feel relieved with this outburst:

I hate women who eat celery.
I hate women who don't understand my wise cracks.
I hate women who say "darn" when they're mad.
I hate women who can't play tennis and do.
I hate women who can play tennis and don't.
I hate women who hate the things I like.
I hate women.

Every once in a while some engineer declares the White House is unsafe as a building and unless some radical repairs are brought out there is danger of a calamity. What're they trying to do, scare away the presidential aspirants?

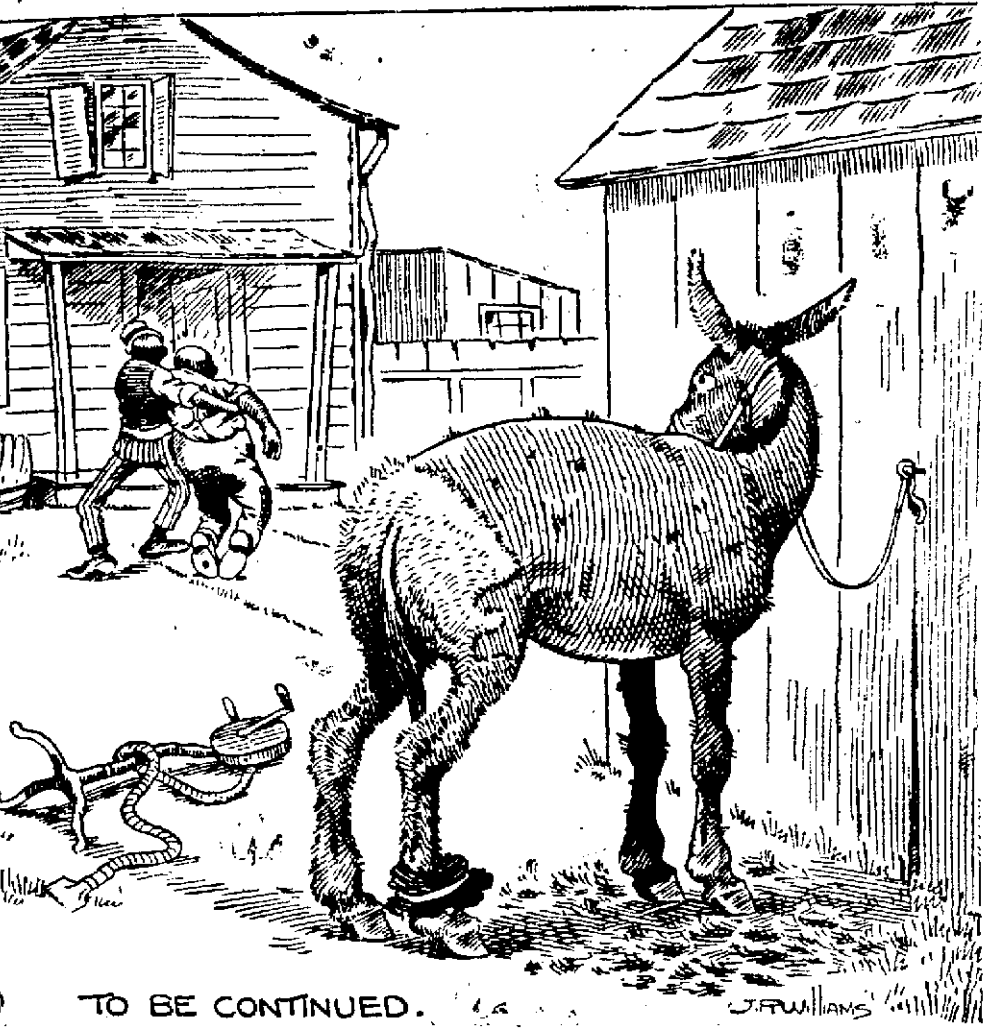

"Never in history were so many men and women instructed in the elements of learning," says Dr. Nick Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, "and never before in history were so many men and women walking the streets with starvation and want staring them in the face."

Briefly, what the president was trying to say was. Never before in history have there been so many men and women.

Ah, ne! The modern girl might know less about making bread, but she knows more about making dough.

PLANTS AS RECLAIMERS
Plants play a tremendous part in the reclaiming of land. But for their work, we would have minus many an island and much valuable shore land. Sand-binding and other sand-binding plants do this.
Marram-grass, or sand-reed, is one of the most interesting. Its blades are extremely strong and are sometimes used in making rope. It does not make good grazing for animals. The roots and buried stems grow to enormous length and in the process they matted and twisted together so as to fill invaded land. These shoots reach out in all directions, rooting at every joint. As the shoots covers with sand one shoot, the grass keeps climbing to the surface and thus every foot of new sand is tied and laced by the grass-binding arms.
It does not like salt water, and prefers to stay in and on the sand-dunes, yet not waving far inland. The marram-grass stores quantities of water, keeping the sand around damp, and so stays the sand from blowing away.
All incoming aliens at American ports must be examined by doctors of the U. S. Public Health Service.
